DESCRIPTION

Very large hand-turned ceramic vase by Margrit Linck: this Swiss ceramist brought a wind of modernity to Swiss ceramics through contact with prestigious artists such as Picasso and Giacometti. Combining tradition with modern forms, she liked to favor the white color, better able to express her forms in their purity.

This two-in-one vase is made up of a large column accomodation a graphic rounded vase in white enamelled ceramic. Each can be used independently.

Signed with a fish under the bases and at the foot of the column.

Circa 1970.
