DESCRIPTION

Wardrobe designed by André Sornay, cabinetmaker and designer from Lyon, a key figure of French modernism and inventor of the "tigette" rod-assembly system developed in the 1930s.

Produced around 1960 by Meubles Sornay, the wardrobe features a solid mahogany frame and base. The sliding doors, lacquered in black and cream, highlight the graphic and structured design typical of Sornay's work. The interior is organized into two sections: a hanging space on the left, and multiple storage shelves on the right.
